procedure for gathering information.

Data collection will begin Fall Quarter (091). It is being recommended that Employment Seminar rather than Capstone be used as the data collection point. This will be confirmed at the beginning of the Academic year.

3. Students will demonstrate competency in making a formal presentation.

a. Students will choose the appropriate communication medium and level for audience.
b. Students will demonstrate the ability to clearly structure a message and express ideas.
c. Students will utilize strategies to monitor comprehension.

Communication outcomes assessment rubric and/or co-op evaluation form.

80% of AOS students will receive and average score of "2" or higher and 80% of AAS students will receive a score of "2.5" or higher on the communication outcomes assessment rubric and/or co-op evaluation form.

The presentation format in the Capstone Course was modified by the instructors, with an emphasis on group presentation instead of individual. Data was collected Fall and Winter Quarter (n=74). Because of the revised nature of the presentations the data was judged not to be reliable.

Based upon the results, a working group was established to develop a revised procedure. This has been completed and approved by the department as well as the Chairs in Academic affairs. Data collection will begin Fall Quarter (091).

Comments:
(Summary/Reflections on progress made since AY 2006-2007 Middle States Report)

The communication outcomes were initially developed by an institute faculty committee, but Communication Studies has been charged with the implementation. This implementation has been affected by the fact that the assessment occurs in the Capstone Course (a course not under CSS). In addition this course was modified and is in its second piloting year. Faculty have participated in the assessments have have since recommended modifications, which we are now focusing on, especially in the area of e-mail assessment. These efforts have afforded us the opportunity to infuse instruction related to these outcomes in several areas, notably in the required CSS courses and in the Job Search Process Course. These efforts have been very positive and are ongoing, providing needed additional instruction in these three areas (e-mail, presentation skills and face to face communication).
